

FUSCO & MACALUSO

CRIMINAL LAW

What if I am accused of a Drug Crime?

An important fact in determining the seriousness of your drug charge is the type and quantity of the illegal drugs associated with your case.

A few pounds is more serious than a few ounces. A few ounces is more serious than a few grams, and so on.

Also, it is highly important whether or not you have a prior criminal record. The first job of defense in any drug case is to evaluate if the police conducted an illegal search of your home, automobile or yourself. Fusco & Macaluso understands well the law of illegal searches and seizures and will immediately act on YOUR BEHALF to protect YOUR RIGHTS FROM VIOLATION.

Under the Fourth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, you have a right to be protected against illegal searches and seizures by police and police investigators. As an experienced and knowledgeable lawyer, I know these constitutional rules and how to apply them in your defense. I uphold the Law and fight to protect your rights.

The next line of defense is an accurate evaluation of the strength of the prosecution's evidence so that immediate steps can be taken to build a strong defense case. In some cases, the evidence of your guilt may be great; however, many cases involve the testimony of informants who are drug dealers setting up drug for entrapment.

I understand from years of experience, how the world of undercover drug investigations works and what I must do as your Attorney to investigate and find ways to discredit an informant and his damaging potential testimony.
